

ISAAC HUNTER, Manager.

The presidential election is over, and has resulted in the return of the republican party to power. There will be great rejoicing among the hungry republican office seekers who for four years have been to make way for the detested democrats. The change means more however than merely the filling of public positions with friends of the party. It means a change in the trade policy of the country. The majority in Great Britain and Canada would have preferred Cleveland to Harrison. The former was pledged to promote tariff reform, which means free trade relations between the two countries, and any step made in the direction of free trade by

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

The Union Thanksgiving service in the Presbyterian church, on Thursday, was well attended. Rev. D. G. McQueen, conducted the opening exercises.

Rev. Geo. H. Long, said that those false witnesses who charged Stephen before the Jewish council with blasphemy for declaring that Jesus of Nazareth would destroy the temple and change the customs that Moses delivered to them, gave evidence that was true. The design of the Gospel was to supersede Judaism and on the foundation laid by the ceremonial law to rear the superstructure of the Gospel. The temple with all its system of worship was destroyed and the customs delivered to Moses changed. But to those who from the present look back over the past the truth had a larger and wider meaning than even Stephen dreamed of, for not only did Jesus of Nazareth change the customs of the Jews, but he has changed those of the world. All that we have that is good and praise worthy in Christ's teaching on human hearts. The changed relations between employer and employee are due to Christian principles. In the early centuries nearly all labor was forced slave labor with many. But as the gospel prevailed a sentiment of liberty took hold of men's minds and the idea grew that all men were born free and equal, until Christians began liberating their slaves and now none are held by professedly Christian countries. The world's heroes in our time are of a better class than these worshipped by men in early ages. Muscle and brute force made men admired by all, and gave them leadership among their fellows, and in those days men were demigods because they were demi devils. But after a time mind took the place of muscle and savageness, and even this had to be joined to refinement and culture before men were accepted as leaders, and now we see the dawning of an era when goodness and unselfishness will raise men higher in the regard of the world than muscle, brain or even culture without Christian graces. The heaven of Christ's doctrines has been working in society and changing this sentiment. The change for the better is also seen in the causes of war. There was a time when men hunted one another for the fun it gave them, then they fought for power, then for trade and commerce, then for the rights of others and now it must be for some principle of liberty or for the good of humanity. And this evolution has been carried on by the power of this Jesus of Nazareth who has been changing the customs of the world in this respect. Then the customs of men in their treatment of women has been changed. In olden times and among heathen nations or those not under gospel influences women were either beasts of burden, or sports of passion. But Christ who numbered women among his most devoted followers has been changing all this and now in all Christian countries she occupies the place designed for her as man's helpmate and companion. No class of people in the world has so much to thank God for, as the gospel by changing the custom of the world, has raised her from drudgery and bondage into liberty and happiness. The change is also seen in the treatment of the old people. Among many pagan nations it was the custom to neglect and leave to die the old and infirm who were encumbrances. This was the custom among some tribes of North American Indians, and in ancient times outside of the Jews the old were neglected. But now in Bible lands none are so revered and attended as the old and aged. The example and teaching of Christ have been doing its work and changing the customs of the world. The world is moving on and up and men are leaving their superstitions and savage customs, and the power doing the work is the power of Christ. The little heaven is leavening the whole lump. How thankful to Almighty God those who live in those enlightened times should be, and on this our national Thanksgiving Day, let thanks to Christ be offered by all those who live in the enjoyment of such rich blessings from the Father's hand.

The Rev. D. G. McQueen followed taking for his text, Deut. 8, 7, (1st clause) "For the Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land."

The description of the promised land as a land that floweth with milk and honey, was not one of exaggeration. As we read of The Giant cities of Bashan, and think of the multitudes that must have drawn their means of subsistence from the land of Palestine and its surroundings even before the children of Israel set foot upon it, we see that the figure of speech is not too wide for the facts of the case. The process of preparation for its occupation by God's people was long one even if we go no farther back than the time when the lonely stranger from Ur of the Chaldees first pitched his tent on the plains of Mesopotamia, and follow down the centuries until the fulfillment of the promise, to give thee great and goodly cities which thou buildest not and houses full of good things which thou fillest not and vineyards and olive trees which thou plantest not. And the promise was literally fulfilled when once the cup of the iniquity of the Amorites who dwelt in the land was full and they had even in their iniquitous history, fulfilled the purpose of God in thus preparing a rest for his peculiar people. Gratitude as it flows from the heart in response to the touch of kindness should have long been manifest in even an Israelite's life. But how soon did they forget the hand that had been opened thus wide to supply them. In this respect they do not stand alone as a unique example of base ingratitude. It was not without deep reason and truth that Scotland's poet wrote. Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn. Is it then strange that men, who are thus prone to forgetfulness and ingratitude towards their fellows who live and move and have their being in their midst, should have the same attitude towards Him who is the unseen one. It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and for nations to recognize that there is one whose kingdom ruleth over all, and by the opening of whose hand every living thing is satisfied. Our meeting thus together for thanksgiving for the mercies of the past year, should be the means of leading our thoughts up to the giver of every good and perfect gift. The gratitude which thus seeks to find expression in songs of thanks ought not to end with the present service. Its reality shall become manifest in the right use of the blessings of the past year. For the proper use of these is the very best evidence of our appreciation of and gratitude for them. The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof, and it is for our appropriation and right use. Let us look at some of these blessings, but not in any self glorifying or boastful spirit, for that is pharisaism under a certain form. Nations glory consists not in what has been done for it, but what it is and does for itself and others. The history of the past and all that it has brought to any nation is of no value only in so far as it is appropriated and become a factor in future action. Let us look at our blessings as stewards of a heritage. As stewards who must give an account of the trust committed to us, it is becoming for us to estimate the value of blessings. There is the vast and fertile territory which is ours, we are but the van guard of the millions that are yet to be in this heritage of ours, and it becomes us to lay well the foundation of our nation in righteousness which alone exalteth a nation. Our youth is a prophecy of what our manhood shall be. We are starting with all the civilization of older lands as a basis to work upon. There is not for us any long and tedious process of evolution from barbarism up to present civilization, and much must be expected from us. We have all the energy and inspiration of youth on our side, ours is indeed a new world. Liberty both civil and religious are ours as an inheritance from our fathers that demands looking after with that gratitude that is seen in the appropriation and right use of blessings. God has crowned the year with goodness and is asking us in these to prove me now herewith if I will not open the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it. These and many more measure our responsibility, and call for the proper expression of our gratitude.

ASSEMBLY NOTES.

The Regina Journal says: "That the new legislature presents an imposing appearance. They are certainly a fine intelligent looking body of men."

The committee on municipal law has decided to recommend allowing unmarried women and widows to vote on municipal matters if they are in possession of the necessary property qualification ($200.)

Boarding houses keeping four or more boarders are to take out licenses, so the committee says.

A petition signed by 130 electors of Batoche was presented by the governor to the assembly, against the action of the returning officer in counting in Mitchell as member. They ask for his expulsion and the punishment of the returning officer.

The first three ballots for speaker resulted in a tie between Ross and Wilson. After the first ballot Ross wanted to retire in favor of Wilson but his friends would not allow him. On the fourth ballot one of Ross's supporters broke for Wilson, when at the request of the former the vote was made unanimous.

Behind the speaker and partly hid by the chair is a large painting of Sir John A. Macdonald. A waggish member from Alberta styled it, "the power behind the throne."

According to etiquette the speaker's chair becomes his personal property on vacating his position, as a memento of his occupancy. The one occupied by Dr. Wilson is a new one elaborately carved and upholstered.

GENERAL.

James McLennan, Q. C., one of the judges recently appointed by Sir John, is manager of the Globe publishing company.

Ten Baptists and one Methodist minister expelled from their churches for non-conformity to doctrine have organized a new denomination.

The C. P. R. have altered their time table on the main line. The train going west is three hours and the one going east is two hours behind the old time.

Attorney General Mowat has returned to active practice at the bar but will not relinquish his duties as a public man in consequence.

Frank Day of Toronto, was stabbed in Chicago, the day before leaving for Toronto for Harrison. The murderer is unknown.

Construction has begun on the Duluth & Winnipeg railway. Ninety cars of steel rails are on hand and several hundred men at work at the Duluth end.

English and German gunboats have been ordered to Formosa to protect the interest of foreigners there, as a rebellion has broken out among Chinese residents against increased taxation.

Winnipeg is agitated by a religious revival carried on by the evangelists Hunter and Crossley who became so well known in connection with the Ottawa revival last winter.

Garratt who was sent to Stony Mountain for fourteen years for robbing the mail on Salt Plain between Qu'Appelle and Prince Albert, escaped from the jail and at latest accounts has not been recaptured.

Calgary Herald: Al. Cunningham, manager of Claxton's ranch two and a half miles from town, on entering his stable one morning was attacked by a huge wild cat, which had been passing the night with his hens killing 20 of them. He beat a retreat got his gun and shot the brute.

Regina Leader: Dr. Wilson the speaker elect of the legislative assembly was born at Picton, Ontario, in 1859. Educated at Upper Canada College and at Trinity, he will not only bring three years experience as a legislator but a well trained mind to the duties of his office. His well-known firmness will stand him in good stead and we have little doubt that he will display those other qualities of impartiality, courtesy and readiness of decision which go to complete the outfit of a president of a deliberative assembly.

There has been considerable excitement caused by the dismissal of Lord Saville, by the Cleveland administration. During the progress of the presidential election campaign, an individual representing himself as an Anglo-American, wrote to the British minister asking his advice as to how he should vote. He desired to cast his vote for the party most friendly to the mother country. Saville in reply expressed the opinion that the Cleveland administration would be the most friendly. The answer was made public, and set the Americans about the ears of the meddling Briton. It was extensively used by the republicans to inflame the anti-British element against the democratic Secretary Bayard, to show his party's independence of Great Britain, notified Lord Saville that his services in the present administration, in consequence he is no longer the British representative at Washington. The affair is likely to cause serious trouble as most of the English papers took on it as a national insult. The consensus of opinion seems to be, that while Lord Saville was guilty of an indiscretion he did nothing to deserve dismissal and insult from the Americans. War has been the result of less serious offences than ordering home the representative of another nation. In this case the British government would be justified in refusing to appoint a successor to the dismissed minister. It would be a serious thing to do, but it is about time our neighbors learned that insults to foreign nations cannot with impunity be used as party ammunition. This affair following so quickly on the heels of the threatened retaliation bill with the attendant anti-British speeches of belligerent senators is almost more than any nation, no matter how desirous of preserving the peace, can stand. It is to be trouble. There must be a much stronger element hostile to Great Britain among our neighbors than many people on this side of the line imagine, or those seeking for office would not dare to resort to such unfriendly acts to gain support. We have no desire to become part of a nation that has to drag its national dignity in the dust every four years, and those who express such an ardent desire to rush into the arms of the United States, either by political or commercial union, should learn wisdom in time to prevent any such national disaster.

FRANK KERNAN, left on Sunday for Calgary to meet his mother and sisters who were expected there by the 13th. They left a year ago for London, but as usual with a love going east to live, the fascination of the west was too strong, and they are returning to permanently settle here.

Why should not the people of this town organize themselves into a society for mutual improvement. The winter with its long evenings is now beginning and with plenty of time to spare there is no reason why there should not be a series of weekly or semi-monthly meetings held that would be instructive and entertaining. A course of lectures on different subjects by the professional men of the place and by any others willing to give them, would no doubt be improving. There is enough talent here to supply the residents with a rich literary and musical treat once a week during the cold season. Our young people are usually interested in the question of supplying entertainment for the evenings of winter and by somebody taking hold and carrying out some such a plan as suggested the problem would be solved.
